

Kevin E. Phillips is focused on living life with purpose and passion. He has extensive experience leading cross-functional projects and developing people.

Author, and a U.S. Air Force veteran, entrepreneur, speaker, marathon runner, world traveler, and MBA graduate from the University of Michigan, Ross School of Business, Kevin enjoys helping people reach their full potential and enabling companies to flourish.

Further, Kevin has spent over 15 years in various business industries and organizations delivering exceptional results and building high performing teams. Throughout this time, his experiences have ranged from captivating work environments filled with energy and excitement, to debilitating conditions that challenged the resilience to show up each day.